Superintendent's Highlights

During the 1996-97 school year, Genesee School District continued its tradition of excellence while preparing for the next millennium. In collaboration with parents and patrons, the district worked toward attainment of its vision narrative. In addition to expanding our network, we have begun implementation of comprehensive computer assisted instructional software at the elementary level to enhance our ability to meet individual needs. Our extensive secondary curriculum, unusual for a small district, continues to prepare students for post secondary options. Maintenance of small class size continues to be a priority allowing us to provide adequate attention to every student.

Progress Towards Meeting District Goals

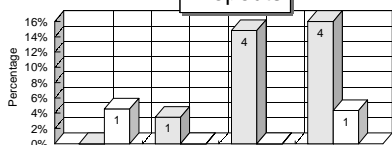

1996-97 Goals	Progress
Implementation of district's technology plan	All classrooms are wired to network. All students and staff have Internet access and e-mail. Computer lab and multi-media capabilities have been expanded. Computer assisted instructional software have been purchased and staff training is in progress.
Enhance communication systems in and out of school	The district newsletter has been expanded and improved. An electronic bulletin board/homework hotline is installed. Monthly school-side chats are held which provide curriculum information for parents. A school information/volunteer coordinator has been established.
Establish a comprehensive program of planned, sequential professional development in the areas of curriculum, technology and instruction	Professional development time has been allotted monthly in the school calendar. Summer courses are offered for teachers in Genesee.
Design a program to promote student responsibility at all levels	A committee of patrons and staff met during the year to define student responsibility. The search continues to find a suitable program to recommend for implementation.
Increase parent involvement in the school	PTSA membership has increased slightly. Utilization of parent volunteers is more coordinated and effective. We will continue to develop strategies to increase parent involvement.
